Calling The True Israel Peoples

Editorial

Dear Readers,

Queen Elizabeth II Dead An End of An Era

Since the last edition of this magazine we have seen a passing of an era of outstanding and astonishing events, in the death of Elizabeth II at the age of 96 on 8th September 2022; an unprecedented length of reign of 70 Years and 7 Months.

It is remarkable that the British Empire began to expand and prosper under Elizabeth I and then declined under Elizabeth II and became ruled over by the City of London crown. The monarch even having to obtain permission of the Lord Mayor to enter that independent sovereign state!

While much has been said and is being said about the Queen particularly the extent of her influence on state affairs, although one can never be absolutely certain, but from evidence in plain sight, scandals galore amongst the Westminster establishment, any influence she had, has diminished markedly towards the end of her long reign.

The Monarchy lost much of its power following the murder of Charles I when the House of Commons took upon itself the former Royal prerogative of coining money, more so later when William of Orange (puppet of the Amsterdam Jews) permitted the creation of a central bank, namely the Bank of England, then almost immediately borrowed a large sum from it to fight the French, since when the British have been in debt to the bank ever since. Centralisation, is Communism!

The Brexit Act having received the Royal assent on 23 January 2020, coming into effect on the 1st of Feb following. However, while all eyes were were fixed on the exit from Europe, few noticed a clause tucked away in that verbose bill where Parliament declared itself Sovereign, thereby dethroning the Monarch, whereas before it consisted of the three estates, Monarch, House of Lords and House of Commons.

The Queen was wheeled out to give credence to the CV scam and in her Christmas Day broadcast, stating, “those who did not take the vaccine were selfish,” It is ironic therefore, the timing of both the Queen and Prince Philip’s death coincides with the date interval between taking the CV and death. Was this another Satanic sacrifice Elizabeth II reported dead round the world 911 days exactly after the day that changed the world, when the World Health Organisation (WHO) declared a worldwide pandemic on 11 March 2020! The Queen having also died 77 years, 7 days after the end of WWII ready for the start of the next worldwide catastrophe and possibly WWIII.

Another important event, the implications of which have yet to unfold, was Elizabeth II's proclamation in her Privy Council held at Windsor Castle on the 8th June, this year. Where it was ordered that fiat currency would be abolished by not later than January, 2023 to be replaced by coins of value, starting with a £1000 gold coin and others of lesser value in both Gold and silver. Such was not reported in the Main Stream Media, only in a few alternative media sources including this magazine. It is of note that the Queen died exactly 3 Calendar months after the proclamation!

It has been noted in this magazine that the satanic opening ceremonies of the Commonwealth Games in Birmingham on the 27th July this year depicted the demise of England so 43 days later (4 + 3=7 - another 7) we have the death of the English Monarch.

The above picture is very poignant it could signify the last hurrah of the white Christian race in the state occasion of Elizabeth II's funeral. While all eyes were glued to the late Queen's funeral, the UK quietly published the horrific CV vaccine serious injuries and deaths data, amongst which 91% of those who died for various reasons had had 3 jabs.

It was very interesting that those lining the route of the cortege from Westminster to Windsor were nearly all white faces. Notwithstanding the merits or otherwise of the Queen in person, the monarchial system of government is deeply ingrained in the people of the nations of true Israel. The funeral was truly a British tradition being brought to the fore under which we true Britons and our kindred in other white nations could unite and rise above the alien cultures being forced upon us!

Q reflected on the orb atop the coffin

From Mike King of the Revised History Channel, we learned that the mysterious super-hero who goes by "Q" had crashed the Royal party -- or so it seems.

"Recall that we had closed our previous piece with the following observation which a reader had alerted us to, and we then duly verified:

"The number of days between Q's very first post on October 28, 2017 and the Queen's death is 1776 -- the year during which the American colonies declared their independence from the Britain of Queen Elizabeth's great great great great grandfather, King George III. Coincidence?"

For those readers that haven't Internet access and unaware of who "Q" is, he was a purported whistle blower from the Deep State appearing on videos as Qanon wearing a mask. Towards the end of his broadcasting most realised he was a shill.

The Mark of "Q"

Reminiscent of the masked hero of the TV / Movie character Show, "Zorro," who would always carve out a "Z' somewhere for his tyrannical enemies to see -- an image -- probably a doctored photo injected into the press -- of Lizzie's flag-draped coffin being carried out of the cathedral revealed the reflection of the letter "Q" on the Orb. By itself, perhaps coincidental --- but combined with all the other weirdness, we take it as a sign that Q not only crashed the funeral --- but "he" may have actually engineered the fall of the Windsors. Was this what Q meant when he posted those chess analogies: "Queen protects King" and "Queen before King"?

Funeral Magic?

Most notable, amongst the final acts of the funeral in St. George's Chapel at Windsor, was the Lord Chamberlain breaking his wand of office and placing it on the coffin. From research carried out it seems this is a novel term for a staff of office, its been called a rod i.e. Black Rod and the Rod of Moses, never a wand, which is used by Magicians and in black magic!

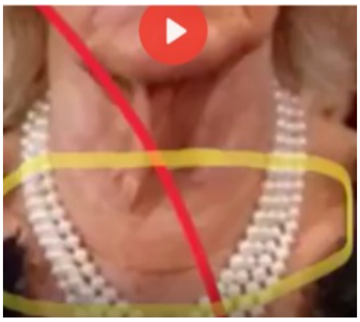

According to the commentator of the filmed ceremony, the Lord Chamberlain was non other than Peter Parker former head of MI5, which makes one wonder was he Qanon?? Was this symbolically celebrating the demise of the Monarchy? Its also possible Yahweh is cleansing the House of David ready for the return of the King of Kings to His earthly Throne!

Queen Consort Camilla

What's with all those weird wrinkles and bubbles around her mouth and chin?

Mike King also points out, there was something decidedly peculiar about the turnout of King Charles' consort Camilla, she appears to be wearing an actor's face mask. A close-up of her neck reveals an actor's mask, shown in more detail below. Click on picture for a short video.

The alleged President of the United States -- "Joe Biden" -- was made to wait for his seat, and then placed 14 rows to the back, with the potentates of the Third World, in behind the president of Poland! This humiliation of "the leader of the free world" the head of state of a country with a "special relationship" with the UK.

London was no doubt unhappy with the way Biden handled the Ukraine situation and had to replace him with Boris Johnson, UK's previous Prime Minister! With the changing of the changing of the UK/USA and other events leading to WWIII, and possibly Armageddon, especially with the recent destruction Nord Stream 1 and 2 gas pipelines by NATO on 26th September, it looks now almost a certainty!

With the passing of another great chapter in British history and with the mourning for our late Monarch nearing the end. Despite all the criticisms of the Monarchy, she performed her state duties to perfection, for which she was much loved. We pray for Yahweh's protection during the dangerous times ahead, and to His coming to take David's throne. Praise Yahweh!!

Misconceptions About the Jewish People

Before getting deeply into the subject of the two bloodlines, one historical issue must be clarified. This issue bears directly on how numerous biblical verses are understood.

It is a fact that most people assume that the Jews are Israelites. I cannot stress strongly enough that this idea is false. My book, The Great Impersonation, How the Anti-Christ Has Deceived the Whole World, details the 2,000-year-old Jewish pretence and masquerade as Israel.

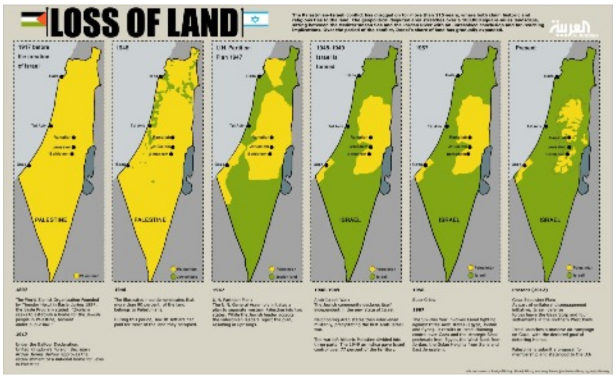

This book tells the parallel stories of True Israel and of those, the Edomite and Khazar Jews, who have been pretending to be us. Although the word 'Jew' is technically derived from the words 'Judah' and 'Judean,' a Jew is NOT a Judahite.

A Judahite is a 100% lineal descendant of the patriarch, Judah. No admixture of alien blood is allowed. This excludes half-breeds (mamzers). God's Law explicitly forbids race-mixing for Adamites and Israelites and Judahites. One look at the Jewish visage and a little bit of historical understanding proves conclusively that the Jewish people are neither Israelites nor Judahites.

On this point, most CI teachers agree irrespective of their position on the bloodlines.

So, why is this important? Because Yahweh's Covenants, which were made exclusively to Israel, are being claimed by a usurper, the Jewish people, under the direction of their priesthood, the rabbinate. Fraud should be exposed wherever it is found; and fraud on so gigantic a scale as this must be shouted from the housetops. The Jewish impersonation of Israel is the basis of their claim to Palestine. They are impostors, usurpers and murderers, in the name of Judah. "The Jews are God's chosen people." "The Jews are God's chosen people." "The Jews are God's chosen people." …ad nauseam.

The world has heard this lie billions of times. No amount of repetition makes the statement any truer. It is, in fact, the Biggest Lie of History. Since their occupation of Palestine is based on this historical fraud, everything they do there is evil; and anyone who supports them in this evil is also doing evil, whether intentionally or unintentionally.

Unfortunately, there are those in the Christian Identity Movement who do not fully understand the nature of this evil.

British Israel Versus American Israel

Under the heading of the Anti-Seedliners, I first listed Howard B. Rand. Mr. Rand has written numerous books explaining the doctrine of Christian Identity. His book, Study In Revelation, is by far the best book ever written on the subject of the Book of Revelation, or the Apocalypse of John.

Mr. Rand details, with historical precision, the exact fulfilment of virtually every prophetic statement contained in the Apocalypse. The only drawback to this book is, since it was written in the 1950's, Mr. Rand had to guess about what we have lived through since then. Nevertheless, I would have to say that this one book, with the exception of Bertrand Comparet's taped sermons on this subject, makes all other commentaries on the Apocalypse look childish. That is how highly I think of his work.

But Mr. Rand had a blind spot. He thought the Jewish people were the tribe of Judah! It is understandable why he thought this. He was of the British Israel school of Identity. The basic difference between British Israel and American Israel is that the former teaches what Mr. Rand believed, that the Jews are descended from Judah.

American Israel, on the contrary, understands that the Jewish people are neither Israelites nor Judahites. He, along with Herbert W. Armstrong and other American followers of British Israel, taught that the Jews are the Tribe of Judah and that the German people are descended from Japheth, the brother of Shem.

Rand and Armstrong have it backwards. The fact is that the German people are descended from the Jutes, Saxons, Sueves, Goths, Teutons, and other Germanic tribes, all of whom are directly descended from the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel. As the name implies, the Jutes were Judahites.

History records that the vast majority of the Judahites and Benjamites were also taken captive along with the Ten Northern Tribes as part of the Assyrian Captivity, 745-715 B.C. Only Jerusalem and its immediate vicinity were not taken captive at this time. Hence, people from all twelve tribes were taken to Media and placed there by the Assyrians.

The various tribes made their escape directly west across Asia Minor (Above) or north through the Caucasus Mountains. (This event was prophesied in Isaiah 11:16). The latter migration path cited above explains how the Israelites came to be known as the "Caucasians." These facts are detailed in my book and also in Ted Weiland's book, God's Covenant People.

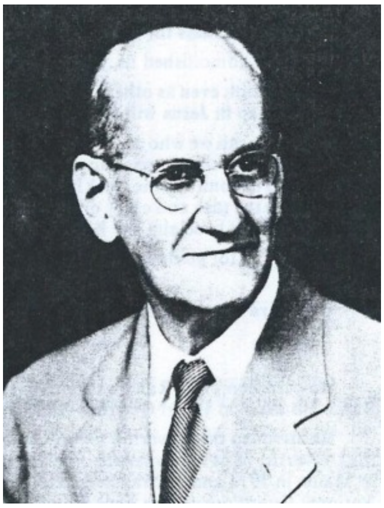

On the other hand, numerous authors, including Jewish authors, such as Alfred Lillienthal, The Zionist Connection, Benjamin Freedman, Facts Are Facts, Myron Fagan, The Illuminati, and Arthur Koestler, The Thriteenth Tribe, have proved beyond a shadow of a doubt that the Jews of Eurasian extraction are descendants of the Khazars, who themselves are descended from Ashkenaz and Gomer, of the family tree of Japheth.

Despite their claims to the contrary, 95% of today's Jews are not descended, even partially, from the family tree of Shem. For this reason, they cannot possibly be Shemites! So, when someone accuses me of being an "anti-Semite," I tell them, "How can I be an anti-Semite? I Am a Semite!"

Why would British Israel teach that the Germans are not our racial kin? The reason is that Britain fought two World Wars against Germany; and the resultant massive wartime propaganda demonised Germany in the minds of the British people to such an extent that even Christian Identity in Britain was affected.

Howard B. Rand was affected by this propaganda as he came into the Christian Identity Movement via British Israel. Because of this bias, British Israel teaches some absolutely amazing absurdities about the Jews and Judah; and many Americans have been influenced by this false teaching.

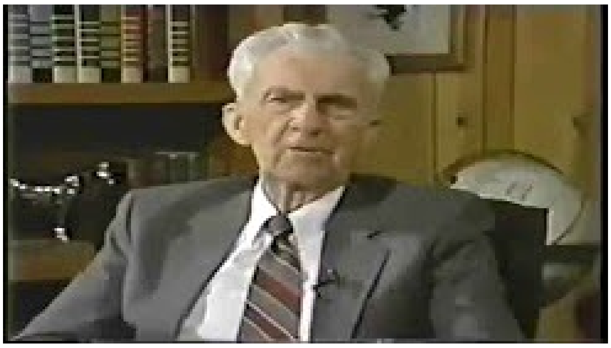

In his Study In Revelation, Howard B. Rand, as a commentary to Rev. 2:9 and 3:9, says the following (left):

"There are those who declare they are Jews, but in reality are the synagogue of Satan. When Jewry crucified Christ they ceased to be Jews in a spiritual sense. Until then, God had been with them but now their place of worship, the synagogue, had become the abode of the adversary." [p. 12]

Mr. Rand is clearly confused for the aforementioned reasons. He thinks that the Jews were, at one time or another, Judahites. Like so many other deceived people, he thought that the Jewish people originated in the Judahites of the land of Judah. I can assure you that this is not possible. Just because the rabbis have very cleverly and deceitfully used the word 'Jew' to apply to both themselves and to the House of Judah does not mean that they ever were the latter!

If an actor impersonates your brother, does that mean that he IS your brother? Just like Eve, the true Israelites have allowed themselves to be fooled by some very clever, diabolical deceptions.

E. Raymond Capt (above) suffers under the same illusion. In his book, Missing Links Discovered in Assyrian Tablets, he says,

"After the Babylonian Empire was overthrown by Cyrus, king of the Persians, the exiled Judeans were allowed to return to their homeland. Of the hundreds of thousands originally taken captive, less than 50,000 accepted the invitation to return to Palestine. It is this 'remnant' that became known as the 'Jews,' a name meaning 'remnant of Judah,' and never having been applied to any branch of the Semitic peoples prior to the Babylonian Captivity." -- p. 93.

Unfortunately, Mr. Capt has got this completely wrong. I have nowhere else found a definition of 'Jew' meaning "remnant of Judah." It is simply a matter of historical fact that this remnant of Judah fully retained the name, 'Judah,' and they were not known, ever, as Jews, because the Jews, unlike Judah, have always practiced race-mixing and have always practiced a different religion.

The people of Judah called their nation "Judah" until the day that Judah and Idumea, a nation of Edomites at the southern border of Judah, were merged by King John Hyrcanus of Judah around 150 B.C. Until that date, there was no such thing as a Jew.

A Jew is one who pretends to be a Judahite, or, perhaps, better, a Jew is a counterfeit Judahite. Rev. 2:9 says, "I know thy works, and tribulation, and poverty, (but thou art rich), and I know the blasphemy of them which say they are Jews [Judahites], and are not, but are of the synagogue of Satan."

Rev. 3:9 tells us, "Behold, I will make them of the synagogue of Satan, which say they are Jews [Judahites], and are not, but do lie; Behold, I will make them to come and worship before thy feet, and to know that I have loved thee."

Is it conceivable that Jesus is talking here to the Jewish people, after he has identified them as the "children of the devil"? He is talking to the House of Judah! Who is it that is impersonating Judah? Judah cannot impersonate Judah. Judah IS Judah.

It is the Jews who are impersonating Judah and Israel. These two statements make no sense otherwise. Who on earth would want to impersonate a Jew anyway? Obviously, the above translation is terribly defective, and it obscures the historical, cultural and ethnic distinctions that must obtain between two mutually exclusive and antagonist groups: Jews and Judahites!

Don't confuse the two! Jesus is talking to Judah and Israel and is warning us about this great impersonation by the Edomites who have usurped the name of Judah.

By inventing this term, "spiritual Jew," Mr. Rand and Mr. Capt have bought into the Jewish charade and are thus unaware of the nature and extent of this impersonation. They seem to think that the Judahites who returned from the Babylonian Captivity underwent some sort of spiritual transformation and became Jews as a result. Obviously, a Judahite can become a Jew by conversion to their religion. But can a race-mixed mamzer (Jew) ever become a Judahite? Hardly. Yahweh was never with the Jews because the Jews have always been the children of a lesser god – the god that encourages race-mixing in direct opposition to Yahweh!

The Jews have never worshipped Yahweh. They only pretend to. They have always been deceivers and they will remain deceivers because that is their nature. It is in their blood.

I believe the source of this confusion can be traced to a rabbinical statement which many of our people have latched on to as if it were solid history. Here is the statement:

"The return from Babylon, and the adoption of the Babylonian Talmud marks the end of Hebrewism, and the beginning of Judaism." -- Rabbi Stephen F. Wise, Chief Rabbi of the United States.

Too many people have taken this statement to be historically accurate. In fact, it is pure rabbinical deception of the most clever kind. The "good" rabbi knows that most of us don't know the history of our own people, so he gets away with several historical inaccuracies in this one, short statement.

Most Christian Identity adherents know that there must have been a historical time when there was a shift in religious teaching, from the Law of Moses to Talmudism. The statement above appears to pinpoint this transition to the time of the return of Judah from the Babylonian Captivity.

The genius of this deception becomes evident when it is realized that most people will assume that, because our people were held captive so long in Babylon, They Must Have Picked up Babylonian Teaching Then and There. But the fact is that they did not.

The Books of Ezra and Nehemiah prove conclusively that the remnant that returned from Babylon completely rejected Babylonian teaching and returned, under the guidance of those two priests, to God's Law.

In fact, Yahweh Himself declared that the House of Judah was to be taken captive to Babylon "for their good"! (Jer. 24:5) If Rabbi Wise's statement were true, it would have been a total catastrophe for Judah!

The return from the captivity, contrary to Rabbi Wise's statement, which is believed by so many, instead inaugurated a Golden Age of Mosaic Law, NOT Talmudism. Indeed, if this were not the case, the Messiah could have never come to a people so completely adulterated as the Jews! The racial descent laws had to apply or Jesus could not have been born! So, whom are you going to believe, the Bible or a rabbi?

Old Testament
"Word for Word" Exodus Part 9
Translation by Stephen Howard Anderson

Chapter 13

1. Spoke Yahweh to Mosheh, saying,

2. "Sanctify to Me all the firstborn, whatsoever opens the womb 7358 among the children of Yis'rael, of adam and of beast: it is Mine."

3. Said Mosheh to the people, "Remember this day, in which you came out of Mits'rayim, out of the house of bondage; because by strength of hand Yahweh brought you out from this place: there shall no eating of chamets 2557.

4. This day you came out in the month Abiyb 24.

5. And it shall be, when Yahweh shall bring you into the land of the Kenaaniy 3669, the Chittiy 2850, the Emoriy 567 the Chiwwiy 2340, and the Yebusiy 2983, which He swore to your ancestors to give you, a land flowing with milk and honey, that you shall keep this service in this month.

6. Seven days you shall eat matstsoth, and in the seventh day shall be a feast to Yahweh.

7. Matstsoth shall be eaten seven days; and there shall be no chamets seen with you, and there shall be no leaven 7603 seen with you in all your territory 1366.

8. And you shall tell your son in that day, saying, 'This is done because of that which Yahweh did to me when I came forth out of Mits'rayim.'

9. And it shall be for a sign 226 for you upon your hand 3027, and for a reminder 2146 for you between your eyes 5869, so that Yahweh's Torath 8451 may be be in your mouth: because with a strong hand has Yahweh brought you out of Mits'rayim.

10. Therefore you shall keep this ordinance 2708 in His appointed time 4150 from year to year.

11. And it shall be, when Yahweh shall bring you into the land of the Kenaaniy, as He swore to you and to your ancestors, and shall give it to you,

12. that you shall dedicate 5674 to Yahweh all that opens the womb, and every firstling that comes from a beast which you have; the males shall be Yahweh's.

13. And every firstling of an ass you shall redeem with a lamb; and if you shall not redeem it, then you shall break his neck 6202: and all the firstborn of adam among your children you shall redeem 6299.

14. And it shall be when your son asks you in time to come 4279, saying, 'What is this?', that you shall say to him, 'By strength of hand Yahweh brought us out from Mits'rayim, from the house of bondage:

15. and it came to be, when Par'oh would hardly 7185 let us go, that slew Yahweh all the firstborn in the land of Mits'rayim, both the firstborn of adam, and the firstborn of beast: therefore I sacrifice to Yahweh all that opens the womb, being males 2145; but all the firstborn of my children I redeem.

16. And it shall be for a sign upon your hand, and for totaphoth 2903 between your eyes: because by strength of hand Yahweh brought us forth out of Mits'rayim.'"

17. It came to be, when Paroh had let the people go, that Elohiym did not lead them through the way of the land of the Pelishtiym 6430, although that was near; because said Elohiym, 'Unless perhaps the people change their minds when they see war, and they return to Mitsrayemah',

18. but Elohiym led the people about, through the way of the wilderness of the Sea 3220 of Reeds 5488: and the children of Yis'rael went up armed 2571 out of the land of Mits'rayim;

19. And took Mosheh the bones of Yoseph with him: because he had straitly sworn the children of Yis'rael, saying, 'Elohiym shall surely visit you, and you shall carry up my bones away from here with you'.

20. And took they their journey from Sukoth 5523, and encamped in Etham 864, in the edge of the wilderness.

21. And went Yahweh before them by day in a pillar 5982 of a cloud 6051, to lead them the way; and by night in a pillar of fire 784, to give them light; to go by day and night: 22. and took He not away the pillar of the cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by night, from before the people.

Chapter 13 Notes

The setting apart for Yahweh of the firstborn carried through until the dispersion. Note the use in verse 1 of adam and beast. Beast here refers to livestock, not two-legged beasts, as they are unclean, and not fit for sacrifice. In this chapter I use the actual word "chamets" for leavened bread. We have allowed OUR words and history to be taken from us by pretenders, and I want to take it back.

Verse 2 - Num. 3:13; Luke 2:23;

Verse 6 - Here we see the Feast of Matsoth (Unleavened Bread) commanded again. Then we see the command to tell our children of what transpired during this time.

Verse 9 - sign is 226, and the word zikaro 2146 is for reminder. This means keep it in our memory, and in all actions performed by our hands, in other words, all our deeds.

Verse 10 - This specifies the date when the Feast is to be held.

Verse 12 - Ex. 34:19,20; Luke 2:23;

Verse 13 - Here it shows that an ass, a valuable work animal, may be redeemed from sacrifice by using a lamb instead. What you redeem the male child with is not seen here however, but was likely a lamb also.

Verse 16 - the word totaphoth 2903 has been used instead of 2146, and is often translated as phylacteries. These today are little boxes made of hide that have verses of Scripture in them, and are strapped on both the forehead, and the arm with leather straps. This is done by the "jews", and are made according to the "tradition of the elders". This verse is a metaphorical verse, and not literal. We do not have a Torah in our mouth, because mouth means our speech and our words. The totaphoth is a metaphor for our actions and our remembrance in our minds always of Yahweh's Torah. The making of “tefillin” is a big industry, and they are expensive, being made only in the “State of Israel”.

Verse 19 - Here the bones of Yoseph are being carried out, as he had wished. Gen. 50:25; Josh. 24:32 ;

Verse 21 - Remember that Yahweh had said, “I will become whatever I please”, and here He has become a pillar of cloud, and a pillar of fire. His Word never fails.

The Hoskins Report
Chapter 257
False Identity

Richard Hoskins

A FEW MONTHS AGO I RECEIVED AN ADVERTISEMENT FROM THE NEW COUNTRY OF ISRAEL about a "Revolutionary New Discovery." The discovery was that the people of northern Europe were descended from the ancient Israelites. I sent for the book and received The Tribes, The Israelite Origins Of Western Peoples[1].

This book was one more Jewish-authored book revealing "the amazing discovery that Saxons[2] are Israel." It contained most of the same proofs that Bible students have long known.

It came with maps of the migrations of the tribes of the early Israelite-Saxons, their final places of settlement, and the counties in which they settled - Naphtali to Norway; Asher and Gad to Britain, Scandinavia and Germany; Dan to Denmark, etc.

Ben Israel’s Argument

The Jews have always known the truth about Saxon-Israel and have used the information, or not used it, as circumstances demanded. The entry of the Jews into Britain was a time when they needed to use it.

The Background

Henry VIII declared himself head of the Roman Catholic Church in Britain. He renamed it the Anglican Catholic Church, appointed his own bishops, confiscated vast church properties, destroyed church monasteries (the training schools for Roman Catholic business managers), and banished the Catholic Priests who would not work for his own Anglican religion.

This left virtually no one in Britain to manage un-seized Roman Catholic Church businesses and manage them under earlier trade agreements. Managers were desperately needed.

The "someone" selected were the traditional bankers and servants of the Roman Catholic Church - the Jews. However, there were no Jews in England. They had been banished by an irate Britain in 1290 after having been first admitted in 1066 to practice their usury banking[3]. Manassah Ben Israel occupied the same place in his day that Robert Maxwell did and Rupert Murdock does today. In addition to his banking and trade operation out of Holland, the centre of world trade, he directed public opinion through his book business - the predecessor of modern mass media.

Ben Israel was assigned the project of getting the Jews into England. To rally public support he published a book in 1650 named The Hope Of Israel. This book used the familiar Saxon-Israel argument with a twist. It went this way: Since Britain already contained the 10 tribes of Israel, the addition of the Jew, which contained Judah and Benjamin, would cause Israel to be the complete 12 tribes. Once that happened, the second coming of the Messiah could then be expected.

The book was sent to the "fundamentalists" of the time to build a following. With this backing, Ben Israel then petitioned Oliver Cromwell to allow the Jews to enter England. Oliver Cromwell was already in his pocket.

A loan of a couple of million gold pieces kept him there. Oliver Cromwell got his money, the Jews got a new market in which to distribute goods from the spice trade, the Catholic Church got managers for their undiscovered assets, and the Anglo-Saxon got the Bank of England a few years later.

Saxon-Israel history has been known by friend and foe for a very long time, and has been used against the Saxon as much as for him.

Saxon Identity & The Establishment Church

Through the years the Jews have been relatively honest when discussing early Saxon history. The same does not apply to the Establishment Church (EC). The Jews win credibility by being relatively honest; the EC risks losing everything if they are honest. Each time the Jews announce their Saxon-Israel "new discovery," the EC treats the new discovery with silence - sometimes with "pooh-poohs."

The Jews delight in bringing up the subject for a number of reasons; they enjoy tweaking the nose of the Establishment Church, which holds their fate in their hands; they really don't like the Christian religion very much; they make money each time they make their "new discovery" announcement; and they use the subject to help them keep their primary job - which is to distribute the goods of the ancient spice trade.

What Organized Religion Fears

Announcements of the discovery that the Saxon people are descended from the ancient tribes of Israel are treated by the established church as "non-events." The EC cannot recognize another rival to this title.

The reason is that centuries ago it co-opted the title "Israel" from the Saxon people for itself. They co-opted it for a reason. Strong's Concordance translates the word "Israel" in the Hebrew to mean, "He will rule as God." Armed with this title and the authority it bestows, the establishment church (both Catholic and Protestant) claim the right to "rule as God" because of the power that resides in the name "Israel." This is how non-Scriptural "spiritual Israel" was born[4].

Today, the establishment church needs that title as much as it ever did. How else can it explain away the brutality of its kings, the venality of its bankers, its land monopoly, its trade monopoly, its taxes, its adultery and the flagrant immorality of its clergy. Armed with God's power of attorney that resides in the name "Israel" - it speaks for God and can do no wrong.

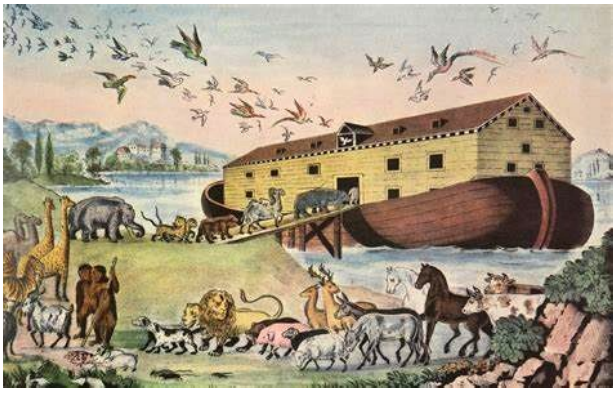

Not for one second can it afford to have Saxons learn that it is they and not the church that is Israel. Once Saxons learn who they are they will rise up and strip the priests of their power, the Churches and their governments of their riches and divide the land and rule themselves according to Scripture[5]. What then will become of the Establishment Church?

Why The Big Lie

Saxons are Christians - or they are nothing. Christians believe that "We must obey God rather than men. "Acts 5:29. The establishment churches, claiming to be spiritual Israel, teach that man-made statutes are to be followed instead.

To keep Saxons quiet, establishment priests promote the following three things:

1. They Teach the Dogma That All the People of World Are Descended from Noah[6].

The doctrine that Whites and non-Whites both originated in one set of ancestors logically results in the silly theory that separate races must be a myth and that one God fathered us all. This theory violates the WORD and nullifies God's command, "A bastard (Heb: mamzêr - mixed breed, mongrel) shall not enter into the congregation of Israel."

Deut 23:2. The dogma drags on to its logical conclusion which is that since everyone is descended from Noah, all must be bastards (mixed- breeds) from the beginning[7]. Noah carried non-Whites on his ark, but not as "blush red" men, but under another name.

1. Co-opt the title "Israel"

The title "Israel" infers the power "To speak as God." To seize this title, establishment church dogma proclaims that there is no more unmixed physical Israel to inherit the title, that unmixed Israel "disappeared," and that they are taking its place as new "spiritual Israel."

This justifies their possessing and monopolizing the wealth of the world - the heritage of Jacob-Israel[8].

2. Ignore the Word MAN

Ignoring the word man ("blush red") permits the Establishment Church to continue to receive tribute from man and human (hued-man) alike. The Establishment Church sits securely on its ancient feudal throne proclaiming that it holds the keys to heaven, while carefully protecting itself with hired politicians and their mercenary armies. This is near the centre of Babylon where the Saxon-Israel message is banned[9].

Back To The Book

The book Tribes, mentioned above, faithfully follows the Saxon-Israel message with a couple of wrinkles that one would expect. Some of them are the same wrinkles used by Manassah ben Israel in 1650. Both proclaim that Saxon-Israel is composed of 10 tribes,10 the other two tribes being the Jews - one of which is Judah. The Jews say that being Judah gives them the right to rule the rest of Israel - meaning us[11].

Manassah Ben Israel

Letter of Commendation

The most interesting thing about the book is the Letter of Commendation in the front, from Rabbi Abraham Feld of the Maccabee Institute, POB 31264, Jerusalem, Israel. He states that, "Upon reading Mr. Yari Davidy's book on the dispersion of the ten lost tribes, and contemplating on how most people will receive this as startling new information, I was reminded of a law that US President Bush recently endorsed."

This law was passed on March 20, 1992, when President Bill Clinton signed a joint Resolution of both Houses of Congress recognizing the Seven Noahide Laws as the "bedrock of society from the dawn of civilization" and urged America to "return the world to the moral and ethical values contained in the Seven Noahide Laws[12]."

Rabbi Feld (above) continued, "This ——is at once a recognition of Torah's relevancy and a basis for a common denominator among all the nations of the world —-a common heritage and bloodline that so many people share unbeknownst to themselves."

Now comes the punch line, "—-the Jerusalem Talmud declares in the days to come the ten tribes will be righteous converts (Sanhedrin, 10)" and concludes, "We of Mossad Maccabee have only the highest praise and respect for this valuable contribution to understanding our roots and heritage."

This is an interesting admission. It spells out what we have long suspected, and that is, the Establishment Church has its itinerary and the Jews have theirs. If the Establishment Church can claim to be Israel and have God's power of attorney, the Jews can too, and with the hired help of tele-evangelists they do and with their natural grasp of "showbiz," they can do it better. They insist that it is They who are physical Israel.

Noahide Laws

The world as seen by the Jew is divided into Jews and non-Jews. The Jews are ruled by one set of laws and non-Jews are ruled by the Seven Noahide Laws. The Jewish holy book, the Talmud states: "Jews are obligated to try to establish the Noachide Code where ever they can." (Yad, Melakhim, 8:10: Judaica, p. 1189)

The actual "seven laws" deal with: 1. Idolatry 2. Blasphemy 3. Murder 4. Sexual Relations 5. Theft 6. Eating limbs of a living animal 7. Establishing Courts of Law.

The problem is not the "7-Noahide Laws." On the surface they are harmless enough. The problem is the implementation of these laws. Unlike the WORD from the Bible, Noahide Laws are not set in concrete. Judaism is not governed by the WORD as is Christianity. They offer a different route in the following manner:

1. The Torah (Laws of the Bible), whose meaning is interpreted by

2. The Talmud, which is compiled and interpreted by

3. Rabbis.

Jewish rabbis have power that can only be compared with the power of a Hindu "perfect Christ - a god on earth[13]." Thus, observance of the Seven Noahide Laws, which is now law, is predicated on the opinions of Jewish rabbis, and that is a real matter of concern, as we shall soon see.

Their Place In World Affairs

The Jews distribute and merchandise a sizable part of the trade of the world, as they are first to admit. The International Trade Cartel (ITC) could care less who guarantees transportation and delivery of the world's trade as long as it is done smoothly and in order.

Mohammed became a world figure by placing himself and his followers astride the spice routes and stopping the caravans. After a year this forced the ITC recognize him as protector and to pay him protection moneys. This made him the most important man in the mid-east. This arrangement with the ITC allowed him to become so powerful that he even professed himself to be god's representative on earth.

Harold Stough Notes and Papers Were There Giants Officiating In The Early Catholic Church

WHILST RESEARCHING SOME HISTORIC PAPERS ON THE CATHOLIC CHURCH for a future lecture planned to rebut the false claims that it was St. Augustine who first brought Christianity to the British Isles. I came across some remarkable old illustrations of Catholic priests of a literally giant stature, which are included here.

Even more remarkable is the fact that there is no mention in the accompanying text of the Giant stature of the priests. On reflection, this is not surprising, as it upsets the enemy's evolution theory. It is fortunate that some of the illustrations were missed and are available to us today. One has to be careful as the enemy has placed many photo-shopped photos of giants in circulation to discredit the genuine ones!

Above: The Mass of Saint Gregory. 16th century (Three massive priests here for you in this image)

Many giants have been discovered in Ireland in the not to distant past which subsequently disappeared like the one taken on display around the UK during the early 1900's in a rail goods wagon. That too,vanished! It can be seen in the picture (left) propped up at the back of a goods rail wagon ready to be taken on show to various venues in London. Enquires as to where this giant ended up drew a blank. It was most likely destroyed, like all the other giant men unearthed by archaeologists. Most people are quite unaware that even archaeology is controlled and censored.

Above; Saint Modoald, also known as Romoald, was the Frankish Archbishop of Trier from 626 to 645. He is the patron saint of the Reichsabta of Helmarshausen.

It is interesting, that giants were to to be found in the early Catholic church who were of the evil Nephalim/Edomite admixture of people. This church arose from that set by Constantine while at York, England, where rumour has it, that Constantine himself was an Edomite.

The End

The Image of The Beast
By
Danny Shreffler

And he had power to give life unto the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should both speak, and cause that as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed." – Rev 13:15

REGARDLESS OF THE PLETHORA OF OBJECTIONS that will undoubtedly arise from my following statement; the truth is what it is.

The woman that rides the beast, the great whore of Revelation is physical Israel. Not the Israeli nation in the mid-East but the true Israel people now existing in the Anglo-Saxon, Germanic, Scandinavian, and kindred people of this earth. This is easily provable if one will but study and accept that truth as given by the prophet Ezekiel's writings; in chapter 16 and again in chapter 23. She stands in stark contrast to the bride of Christ representing the true Israel people under the auspices of the New Covenant.

The supposition that the whore suddenly morphs into a church when the little blank page separating the old scriptures from the new scriptures appears in your Christian Bible is pure myth with neither logical nor scriptural evidence to back up that claim.

When 'beast' or 'beasts' appear in the scriptures in a metaphorical or allegorical sense; it is always speaking of government. When John penned Revelation, beasts still represented governments. All of the governments that have ruled over the Israel people have always been in concert with our own kin, steered by Satan (sic).

This is shown symbolically as the whore (Biblical Israel) riding the beast and the ten horns (the ten-tribe Israel) on the ruling head of the beast. If you can understand this; it will be much easier to understand the prophecy about the image of the beast.

The Final Beast – Mystery Babylon

In Revelation 13, John speaks of the final beast to rule over our people. In an almost human sense, it contains the genetic coding of all of its ancestors. Having teeth like a lion, it excels in military prowess like its grandfather, Rome. In its multiplicity of gods and excellence in government, like its great-grandfather, Greece. The principles of dialecticism and psycho-babble can be attributed to Medo-Persia and the perverted principles of economics and the mixings of religion with government from Babylon. This final government touting two horns and presenting as a lamb is actually a foul beast who speaks like a dragon and exhibits the refinement of all the genetic coding it has within its veins.

Image

An image by definition is a likeness or representation of something else. It can be a physical thing or a mental thing. We can make a statue of a man, or take a picture of a man and that would be an image. We can make an idol that represents a concept or even something intangible like the image of Eros representing physical lust (although called love). We can make an image that represents a god like Thor. It may have a hammer in one hand and lightning in another. That is an image.

An image can also be a mental picture of something as we understand it in our minds: a mental picture or impression of something. // had a negative body image of herself" – Merriam-Webster.com.

> Revelation 13:14 tells us this final beast king will make an image of itself. "…of the beast".

Verse 15 says the image will have life and be able to speak. Worship of this image, like the image of the obelisk of Nebuchadnezzar, will be mandated. All who refuse to worship the image of the beast will be killed. Now perhaps we should make sure we properly fully understand the intended innuendo of the word worship.

Worship

In the passage we are looking at; 'worship' is used as a verb. Whether transitive or intransitive both definitions apply. See here. quoted below.

> Definition of worship
> transitive verb
> 1: to honour or show reverence for as a divine being or supernatural power
> 2: to regard with great or extravagant respect, honour, or devotion a celebrity worshipped by her fans > intransitive verb:
> to perform or take part in worship or an act of worship

Please carefully consider. The actual physical bowing before the image of the beast may not be at all what John was talking about. That was indeed what Nebuchadnezzar required but we are Oh! so much more advanced! … or so we think. While we all say 'I won't bow!' we are bowing every day. Of course, we are not bowing physically. We (universally speaking) don't even attend church anymore. Yet we will bow.

We honour and submit to the authority of the beast by acquiescence and complacent acceptance of anything it shoves down the pike So why do we think we will not bow to the god that man has made? The man-god being prepared will know all things; solve all conflicts; ensure equality and above all make all mankind equal. (Except, of course, the ones who own and operate the beast and its image.) It will protect evil and forbid good.

So many say that is a long way off. It will not happen for years. Have you heard of the social equity system of governance? Have you heard of the image that now is? Have you heard of how it will be programmed and used to govern the world? Do you know how it will have the capacity to handle every individual? Look and learn.

Social Equity

Karl Marx, a member of an elite group of people still in existence today, got his ideas about Communism from Judaism. Stephen Samuel Wise, an American rabbi said "Some call it Marxism – I call it Judaism." Today it is no secret that the major ruling factions of this world are operated by those who are openly a sect of Judaism and purport to be of a unique bloodline and/or a devotee of Communism.

Perhaps their most powerful master of our world is Klaus Schwab. He is the founder and Executive Chairman of the World Economic Forum. He is also a major proponent of the Social Equity method of world control. The same sect has a member in charge of nearly every social platform in existence in our day.

Under the system of Social Equity, every person will have an equity score which will be lowered and raised in proportion to the allegiance to or rebellion exercised toward the Luciferian New World Order.

If you obediently convert to solar power, you will be smiled upon and credited. If you use too much energy you will be debited. If you speak out against climate control you will be dinged. If you use derogatory language against or speak against a certain group of people who behave in a way condoned by the beast but condemned by scripture; you will be severely punished:-

If you refuse to use proper pronouns or say a man can't bear children; ding!

If you say a man can't be a woman and walk naked into their showers; ding!

If you support the right things: credit; wrong things: debit.

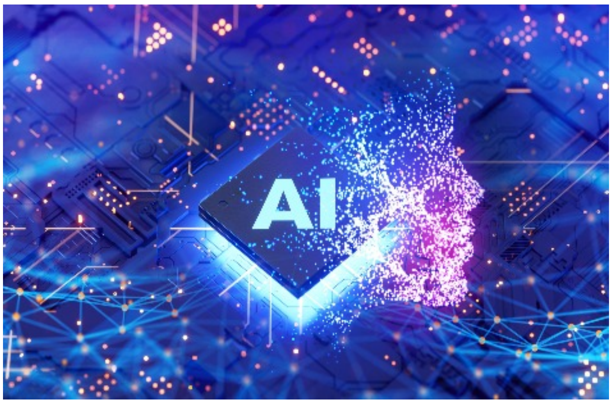

If your credit score gets too low, you will have gasoline credits stripped away, utility bills will be raised, taxes will be raised, or you may even have your bank account seized.

You will not be allowed to travel and perhaps even fined.

You won't have to go to court because the beast will simply debit your bank account.

You will be credited for taking their vaccines and drugs and debited if you refuse. It will be where the most conscientious objectors will not even be able to buy or sell items necessary for survival.

Money is going away soon. We are going to be stripped of our property. It will all be owned by the 'beast and/or the god-man' it has made. You will perhaps get by with barter for a while, but soon you will not even be able to sell your lawn mower to your neighbour without moving digital credits electronically from your account to his.

The AI image will see every transaction and each of them will be taxed. If you get fined it will automatically be stripped from your bank account. It will all be automatic and policed by a machine. The image of the beast. Welcome to what they call equitable fairness.

The Dream Coming True

The primary driver behind this movement is a particular sect of Jewry. It is the father of Communism and desperately seeks to rule the world. Klaus Schwab says we will own nothing and we will be happy.

A couple of weeks ago he purportedly released a diagram of how this image will be programmed. The image we must obey and accept as the final arbiter of all things. (Internet of all things?) Imagine it as a Wikipedia x a million. Thousands of times as fast and programmed by properly thinking people.

The people behind this movement know their greatest resistance will be from Anglo-Saxon (and kindred people) Christians. They must be removed. It is no mistake that Merrick Garland, the US Attorney General believes and says that White Supremacy is the greatest threat in this land.

Why does he believe that? Because he knows we don't believe what he thinks is good is good. We see the system of government envisioned by this sect of Jewry and the Democrat Party as evil while they see it as good. They lie freely to hide their motives and fools by the gaggle keep voting them into office.

The Invisible Rainbow
Irritable Heart
By
Arthur Firstenburg

ON THE FIRST DAY OF AUTUMN, 1998, Florence Griffith Joyner, former Olympic track gold medallist, died in her sleep at the age of thirty-eight when her heart stopped beating. That same fall, Canadian ice hockey player Stéphane Morin, age twenty-nine, died of sudden heart failure during a hockey game in Germany, leaving behind a wife and newborn son.

Chad Silver, who had played on the Swiss national ice hockey team, also age twenty-nine, died of a heart attack. Former Tampa Bay Buccaneers nose tackle Dave Logan collapsed and died from the same cause. He was forty- two. None of these athletes had any history of heart disease.

A decade later, responding to mounting alarm among the sports community, the Minneapolis Heart Institute Foundation created a National Registry of Sudden Deaths in Athletes. After combing through public records, news reports, hospital archives, and autopsy records, the Foundation identified 1,049 American athletes in thirty-eight competitive sports who had suffered sudden cardiac arrest between 1980 and 2006.

The data confirmed what the sports community already knew. In 1980, heart attacks in young athletes were rare: only nine cases occurred in the United States. The number rose gradually but steadily, increasing about ten percent per year, until 1996, when the number of cases of fatal cardiac arrest among athletes suddenly doubled. There were 64 that year, and 66 the following year. In the last year of the study, 76 competitive athletes died when their hearts gave out, most of them under eighteen years of age.

The American medical community was at a loss to explain it. But in Europe, some physicians thought they knew the answer, not only to the question of why so many young athletes' hearts could no longer stand the strain of exertion, but to the more general question of why so many young people were succumbing to diseases from which only old people used to die.

On October 9, 2002, an association of German doctors specializing in environmental medicine began circulating a document calling for a moratorium on antennas and towers used for mobile phone communications.

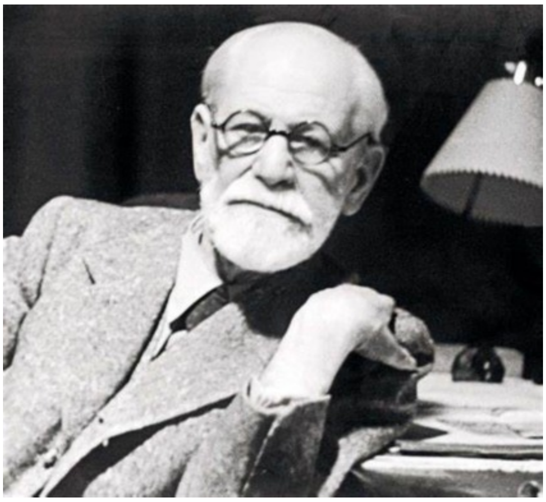

Electromagnetic radiation, they said, was causing a drastic rise in both acute and chronic diseases, prominent among which were "extreme fluctuations in blood pressure," "heart rhythm disorders," and "heart attacks and strokes among an increasingly younger population."

Three thousand physicians signed this document, named the Freiburger Appeal after the German city in which it was drafted. Their analysis, if correct, could explain the sudden doubling of heart attacks among American athletes in 1996: that was the year digital cell phones first went on sale in the United States, and the year cell phone companies began building tens of thousands of cell towers to make them work.

Although I knew about the Freiburger Appeal and the profound effects electricity could have on the heart, when I first conceived this book I did not intend to include a chapter on heart disease, for I was still in denial despite the abundant evidence.

We recall from chapter 8 that Marconi, the father of radio, had ten heart attacks after he began his world-changing work, including the one that killed him at the young age of 63.

"Anxiety disorder," which is rampant today, is most often diagnosed from its cardiac symptoms. Many suffering from an acute "anxiety attack" have heart palpitations, shortness of breath, and pain or pressure in the chest, which so often resemble an actual heart attack that hospital emergency rooms are visited by more patients who turn out to have nothing more than "anxiety" than by patients who prove to have something wrong with their hearts.

And yet we recall from chapter 6 that "anxiety neurosis" was an invention of Sigmund Freud, (above) a renaming of a disease formerly called neurasthenia, that became prevalent only in the late nineteenth century following the building of the first electrical communication systems.

Radio wave sickness, described by Russian doctors in the 1950's, includes cardiac disturbances as a prominent feature.

Not only did I know all this, but I myself have suffered for thirty- five years from palpitations, abnormal heart rhythm, shortness of breath, and chest pain, related to exposure to electricity.

Yet when my friend and colleague Jolie Andritzakis suggested to me that heart disease itself had appeared in the medical literature for the first time at the beginning of the twentieth century and that I should write a chapter about it, I was taken by surprise.

In medical school I had had it so thoroughly drilled into me that cholesterol is the main cause of heart disease that I had never before questioned the wisdom that bad diet and lack of exercise are the most important factors contributing to the modern epidemic.

I had no doubt that electromagnetic radiation could cause heart attacks. But I did not yet suspect that it was responsible for heart disease.

Then another colleague, Dr. Samuel Milham, muddied the waters some more. Milham is an M.D. and an epidemiologist, retired from the Washington State Department of Health. He wrote an article in 2010, followed by a short book, suggesting that the modern epidemics of heart disease, diabetes, and cancer are largely if not entirely caused by electricity.

He included solid statistics to back up these assertions.

I decided to dive in.

I first became aware of Milham's work in 1996, when I was asked to help with a national lawsuit against the Federal Communications Commission. I was still living in Brooklyn, and knew only that the telecommunications industry was promising a "wireless revolution."

The industry wanted to place a cell phone in the hands of every American, and in order to make those devices work in the urban canyons of my home town they were applying for permission to erect thousands of microwave antennas close to street level throughout New York.

Advertisements for the newfangled phones were beginning to appear on radio and television, telling the public why they needed such things and that they would make ideal Christmas gifts. I did not have any idea how radically the world was about to change.

Then came a phone call from David Fichtenberg, a statistician in Washington State, who told me the FCC had just released human exposure guidelines for microwave radiation, and asked if I wanted to join a nationwide legal challenge against them.

The new guidelines, I came to find out, had been written by the cell phone industry itself and did not protect people from any of the effects of microwave radiation except one: being cooked like a roast in a microwave oven. None of the known effects of such radiation, apart from heat—effects on the heart, nervous system, thyroid gland, and other organs—were taken into consideration.

Worse, Congress had passed a law that January that actually made it illegal for cities and states to regulate this new technology on the basis of health.

President Clinton had signed it on February 8. The industry, the FCC, Congress, and the President were conspiring to tell us that we should all feel comfortable holding devices that emit microwave radiation directly against our brains, and that we should all get used to living in close quarters with microwave towers, because they were coming to a street near you whether you liked it or not.

A giant biological experiment had been launched, and we were all going to be unwitting guinea pigs.

Except that the outcome was already known. The research had been done, and the scientists who had done it were trying to tell us what the new technology was going to do to the brains of cell phone users, and to the hearts and nervous systems of people living in the vicinity of cell towers—which one day soon was going to be everybody.

Samuel Milham, Jr. was one of those researchers. He had not done any of the clinical or experimental research on individual humans or animals; such work had been done by others in previous decades.

Samuel Milham, M.D., M.P.H

Milham is an epidemiologist, a scientist who proves that the results obtained by others in the laboratory actually happen to masses of people living in the real world. In his early studies he had shown that electricians, power line workers, telephone linesmen, aluminum workers, radio and TV repairmen, welders, and amateur radio operators—those whose work exposed them to electricity or electromagnetic radiation—died far more often than the general public from leukaemia, lymphoma, and brain tumours.

He knew that the new FCC standards were inadequate, and he made himself available as a consultant to those who were challenging them in court.

In recent years, Milham turned his skills to the examination of vital statistics from the 1930's and 1940's, when the Roosevelt administration made it a national priority to electrify every farm and rural community in America.

What Milham discovered surprised even him. Not only cancer, he found, but also diabetes and heart disease seemed to be directly related to residential electrification. Rural communities that had no electricity had little heart disease—until electric service began. In fact, in 1940, country folk in electrified regions of the country were suddenly dying of heart disease four to five times as frequently as those who still lived out of electricity's reach.

"It seems unbelievable that mortality differences of this magnitude could go unexplained for over 70 years after they were first reported," wrote Milham.

He speculated that early in the twentieth century nobody was looking for answers. But when I began reading the early literature I found that everyone was looking for answers. Paul Dudley White, for example, a well-known cardiologist associated with Harvard Medical School, puzzled over the problem in 1938.

In the second edition of his textbook, Heart Disease, he wrote in amazement that Austin Flint, a prominent physician practicing internal medicine in New York City during the last half of the nineteenth century, had not encountered a single case of angina pectoris (chest pain due to heart disease) for one period of five years.

White was provoked by the tripling of heart disease rates in his home state of Massachusetts since he had begun practicing in 1911. "As a cause of death," he wrote, "heart disease has assumed greater and greater proportions in this part of the world until now it leads all other causes, having far outstripped tuberculosis, pneumonia, and malignant disease." In 1970, at the end of his career, White was still unable to say why this was so.

All he could do was wonder at the fact that coronary heart disease—disease due to clogged coronary arteries, which is the most common type of heart disease today—had once been so rare that he had seen almost no cases in his first few years of practice. "Of the first 100 papers I published," he wrote, "only two, at the end of the 100, were concerned with coronary heart disease."

England Before WWI

Sir___, Here is an interesting snippet I took from a book "England 1914 - 1945" by A J P Taylor

Until August 1914 a sensible, law-abiding Englishman could pass through life and hardly notice the existence of the state, beyond the post office and the policeman. He could live where he liked and as he liked. He had no official number or identity card.

He could travel abroad or leave his country for ever without a passport or any sort of official permission. He could exchange his money for any other currency without restriction or limit. He could buy goods from any country in the world on the same terms as he bought goods at home.

For that matter, a foreigner could spend his life in this country without permit and without informing the police. Unlike the countries of the European continent, the state did not require its citizens to perform military service.

An Englishman could enlist, if he chose, in the regular army, the navy, or the territorials. He could also ignore, if he chose, the demands of national defence. Substantial householders were occasionally called on for jury service. Otherwise, only those helped the state who wished to do so.

The Englishman paid taxes on a modest scale: nearly £200 million in 1913-14, or rather less than 8 per cent of the national income. The state intervened to prevent the citizen from eating adulterated food or contracting certain infectious diseases. It imposed safety rules in factories, and prevented women, and adult males in some industries, from working excessive hours.

The state saw to it that children received education up to the age of thirteen. Since 1 January 1909, it provided a meagre pension for the needy over the age of seventy.

Since 1913, it helped to insure certain classes of workers against sickness and unemployment. This tendency towards more state action was increasing.

Expenditure on the social services had roughly doubled since the Liberals took office in 1905. Still, broadly speaking, the state acted only to help those who could not help themselves. It left the adult citizen alone.

All this was changed by the impact of the Great War. The mass of the people became, for the first time, active citizens. Their lives were shaped by orders from above; they were required to serve the state instead of pursuing exclusively their own affairs. Five million men entered the armed forces, many of them (though a minority) under compulsion. The Englishman's food was limited, and its quality changed, by government order ... etc. Volume XV, Oxford History of England, page one, "England 1914 - 1945" by A J P Taylor. Yours truly, Ronney, Provence, France.

Inner Temple and the City of London

Sir___, There is no surviving record of a charter first establishing the Corporation as a legal body, but the City is regarded as incorporated by prescription, meaning that the law presumes it to have been incorporated because it has for so long been regarded as such (e.g., Magna Carta states that "the City of London shall have/enjoy its ancient liberties").

The City of London Corporation has been granted various special privileges since the Norman Conquest, and the Corporation's first recorded Royal Charter dates from around 1067, when William the Conqueror granted the citizens of London a charter confirming the rights and privileges that they had enjoyed since the time of Edward the Confessor. Numerous subsequent Royal Charters over the centuries confirmed and extended the citizens' rights.

Churchill the Plagiarist and Also the User of Ghostwriters

Sir__, In light of Churchill's severe alcoholism, his high-life-living and his record of academic mediocrity, one has got to wonder how this puffed-up "literary giant" is able to muster the time and discipline necessary to author so many well-written books. Well, you see, the "prolific" multi-millionaire writer not only has the help of "literary assistants," (ghostwriters) but he is also a plagiarist!

A young historian Maurice Ashley contributes heavily to Churchill's widely-acclaimed 1937 'A History of the English-Speaking Peoples'. Years later, another historian named William Deakin pens an enormous amount of material for Churchill, including most of the text of his "widely acclaimed" series on World War II. The military narratives are supplied by a retired general, Sir Henry Pownall.

By the 1950's, an aging and alcohol-addled Churchill is relying upon an entire team of writers to do much more than just research, contribute, and edit, but really take over his work.

The multi-million pound one-man literary enterprise that was Winston Churchill was not a one man show after all. — Ashley, Deakin and Pownall. In addition to his reliance upon ghostwriting historians, the imitation intellectual also engaged in gross plagiarism. British historian Max Hastings, writing in The Telegraph, November 2, 2004, informs us:

"Pownall, ironically enough, had often confided to his own wartime diary rage and frustration about Churchill's intemperate interferences in military operations. Now, for a salary of £1,000 a year, along with a less influential naval counterpart, he played a key role in the fortification of the Churchill legend.

Churchill skillfully injected into the narrative just sufficient rolling phrases in his own inimitable style to put a personal stamp upon the published version. The opinions and judgments expressed were, of course, entirely his own.

But, from the delivery of the first volume onwards, some critics, including Life Magazine which had paid vast sums for serial rights, expressed misgivings about countless pages of contemporary documents rendered verbatim in the text, to make up the weight.

By the time of the third volume, Life's Henry Luce was growling: "The old boy is chiseling on us. If he were younger, we'd kick him in the shins." Churchill narrowly averted litigation for plagiarism from Samuel Morison, an American naval historian whose narrative of the Pacific sea battles was recycled in the former Prime Minister's volumes."

Henry Luce, the legendary founder of LIFE Magazine, came to understand that Churchill was a money-grubbing plagiarist.

Churchill the Forger, Broke and Desperate, Resorts to Selling Fake Paintings

Just how desperate was Churchill's financial situation during the 1930's? Noted British historian and master document digger David Irving informs us:

"Churchill of course is no stranger to counterfeit art. In dire financial straits in the 1930's he took to faking the paintings of the deceased French impressionist Charles Maurin because Maurin's signature sold somewhat better in the Left Bank boutiques in those days than did his own.

Those letters never made it into the official volumes of Churchill Roosevelt correspondence — an omission I have rectified in "Churchill's War", vol. ii: "Triumph in Adversity". Now that's Real History. Spreads like Butter."

Franklin D. Roosevelt

Roosevelt had come to learn of the scam from a fine arts expert in Washington DC. Irving, in another article, quotes from the teasingly friendly 1942 letter in which Roosevelt writes to Churchill as though it is not known who the forger is:

"Dear Winston —- these people who go around under assumed names render themselves open to all kinds of indignity and suspicion."

Having hinted at blackmail, Roosevelt mischievously added: "The British Embassy was asked for verification and I suppose the matter has been to Scotland Yard and back again."

In 'Churchill's War: Triumph in Adversity, historian David Irving uncovers a 1942 letter from FDR to Churchill in which the former teases the British Mad Dog - a mediocre painter - about a 1937 scam in which Churchill put impressionist Charles Maurin's names to his paintings – and then sold them to boutiques! Yours truly, K H, West Midlands. UK.

The Communist Presence Currently Holding America Hostage

Sir__, The communist presence currently holding America hostage, posing as "defenders of democracy," don't want you to see these news clips from the various democrat-run cities where crime is being assertively fostered, compliments of Attorney Generals installed by the likes of George Soros, ordered not to crack down on it.

We now have it declared by this very "leadership" that any street thug can legally steal merchandise from a big box store or family-run business, as long as said merchandise totals under $900.

Even theft exceeding that is being wilfully ignored, along with egregious violence, since our police forces are policy enforcers first, protectors of the peace last. The police do not operate autonomously, no doubt much to the frustration of many good and well-intending members of our police forces.

This selective response to crime is where the colour of your skin now determines crime response; the evil gift that is the endless media race-baiting to foster division, the siren-song-accusations of "racism" and "bigotry" where none exists, effectively turning unwitting citizens of colour, into foot soldiers for this communist-driven influence to upend a nation.

This is nothing less than asymmetrical warfare being plied against America, via the corporate media, helmed by a tapioca-brained, stolen election-installed "president" at the helm, who's drug-snorting, whore-mongering, money laundering son is wilfully ignored by our "justice" system and 3 letter agencies, while Trump endures a now years-long witch hunt by the very communist scourge (dressed in the garb of socialism) running this entire show, since Trump has been pissing-off all the aforementioned players. Like Trump or hate him, it matters not to me, for one need not succumb to the 'Trump-derangement-syndrome' fostered by our corporate media to see that our nation is under attack!

America is under siege now, with media propaganda and policies framed in irony as "progressive." The term "woke" has been coined to deceptively identify what is the precise opposite of human wakefulness; a graft being run on those unable or unwilling to see how the media has effectively weaponised information - in league with beg tech - to steer minds against their own best interests.

Corporate news doesn't cover this now rampant scourge of street criminality in democrat-run cities, just as they did when ANTIFA and BLM burned down their own cities, framed by our media as "mostly peaceful protesters," since corporate news works on behalf of the globalist oligarchs who craft the fate of nations under corporatocracy.

Make no mistake, we are now a nation at war, albeit an information war first and foremost.

The attempt is to get the populace to perform the task conventional warfare otherwise would. A nation can be destroyed with many a military shot fired or bomb dropped. It just takes more time, a process of systematic erosion of principals, of policies, of law and order. This attempt to turn America's national republic into a banana republic, is why the Biden regime wants our guns. They need us unarmed! Yours truly, Pastor Dan. USA.

The British East India Company

Sir___, The East India Company was chartered by the British royal family in 1600. It made vast fortunes in the opium drug trade with China and became the largest company on earth in its time.

The British East India Company's council of 300 in time became the Committee of 300. Today, through many powerful alliances, the Committee of 300 rules the world and is the driving force behind the criminal agenda to create a "New World Order", under a "Totalitarian Global Government".

The inner circle of the Committee of 300 is the Order of the Garter, which is headed by none other than Queen Elizabeth II.

These aristocrats decided at the death of Queen Victoria, the matriarch of the Venetian Black Guelphs that, in order to gain world-wide control, it would be necessary for its aristocratic members to "go into business" with the non-aristocratic but extremely powerful leaders of corporate business on a global scale, and so the doors to ultimate power were opened to what the Queen of England likes to refer to as "the commoners", now known as the global corporate elite.

Through their illicit banking cartel, they own the stock of the Federal Reserve, which is a private "for profit" corporation that violates the U.S. Constitution and through their many think tanks and social and political organizations they control and manipulate ideologies, policies, societal psychology and the ultimate perception of reality. All the families listed in the committee are connected with the House of Guelph, one of the original Black Nobility families of Venice from which the House of Windsor and thus Queen Elizabeth II, descends. This is who died on September 8th.

Humanity should be celebrating, but the veil of deception is so thick and intricately woven that the world will instead mourn the loss of a woman they believe 'dedicated her life to service'.

Right is wrong, wrong is right, lies are truth and truths are lies! Let's hope the world makes sense one day…

Isa 5:20 Woe to those who call evil good, and good evil; who put darkness for light, and light for darkness; who put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter!

Sing to the Lord (Yahweh) a New Song: (World English Bible)

Psa 149:1 Praise Yahweh! Sing to Yahweh a new song, his praise in the assembly of the saints (called out ones).

Psa 149:2 Let (Jacob) Israel rejoice in him who made them. Let the children of Zion be joyful in their King.

Psa 149:3 Let them praise his name in the dance! Let them sing praises to him with tambourine and harp!

Psa 149:4 For Yahweh takes pleasure in his people (Caucasian Israelites). He crowns the humble with salvation.

Psa 149:5 Let the saints rejoice in honour. Let them sing for joy on their beds (prayer time).

Psa 149:6 May the high praises of God be in their mouths, and a two-edged sword in their hand;

Psa 149:7 To execute vengeance on the nations, and punishments on the peoples;

Psa 149:8 To bind their kings with chains, and their nobles with fetters of iron;

Psa 149:9 to execute on them the written judgment. All his saints have this honour. Praise Yah! Yours truly, Laura. Telegram Channel.

Turn The Other Cheek - The Cowards Favourite Verse (Part 2)
By Ray Mondmhor

FOLKS, THESE GUYS HAD FORTITUDE (GUTS), AND THEY WERE READY TO START ATTACKING AT A DROP OF THE HAT.

Christ spoke with such warrior authority that the Entire Group of People stepped back in shock causing All of Them to fall to the ground. Can you picture this?

Do you see the warrior / Lion of Judah I am painting for you here?

Do you understand that the disciples Knew whom they served and Knew whom they were with? Do you see and understand the bravado here that Christ and the disciples displayed?

Christ let himself be known to the crowd. His stating that "Here I Am" clearly startled the mass of people, and I bet that they were seriously shaking in their boots too.

I say all this because often Christ, as well as the disciples, is made out to be a bunch of hippy dippy sissy men.

No… they were not. They were hard core take-it-to-the mat men of God.

This is our example; all of us need to learn to boldly stand again, just as Christ and the disciples did when they were confronted with "their enemy."

Now it is from the following portion that the cowardly pacifists, the wimpy men get another one of their famous out of context ideas.

"Live By The Sword, Die By The Sword."

Mark 14: 46 And they laid their hands on him, and took him.

47 And one of them that stood by drew a sword, and smote a servant of the high priest, and cut off his ear.

48 And Jesus answered and said unto them, Are ye come out, as against a thief, with swords and with staves to take me?

49 I was daily with you in the temple teaching, and ye took me not: but the scriptures must be fulfilled.

We can see the warrior again exert his authority, challenging the mass of people. In fact, does Christ turn the other cheek?

NO!

He accuses them and holds them accountable.

"Hey… you had the chance during the day to come get Me, but you did not have the courage. But now you come in the dark with your swords and staffs being all macho? Some "men" you are! "You want me? Here Am I !!"

So here is Jesus with 11 rag tag men, all of them armed and ready to fight. Then Christ shows how He is the compassionate Servant Warrior. He heals the ear of servant and then reminds them that the Scriptures must be fulfilled.

I have to say that if the Scriptures did not have to be fulfilled, maybe they might have gone at it right then—right there. This was a very tense situation.

But we learn another insight, even though the disciples Knew with whom they were joining in the fight. Christ also shows wisdom in saying

Christ is taken captive and presented to the High Priests' HQ for questioning. Look at the words here in John 18. I am sorry, but this does not sound like a person who is a wimpy, limp wristed sissy man like He is portrayed today.

Annas (above) asked him about all the doctrine, the disciples and what he taught, and Jesus got right back at him in Annas' face and asked him "Why are you asking me?" (Christ knew that Annas already knew the answer) Why don't you ask those who heard me?

They know what I said!

That is when one of Annas' officers then struck Jesus with the palm of his hand. Remember the social norms. Here the officer used his right hand but did not strike his right side. He stuck Christ's left cheek, the closest target.

Did Jesus Turn the Other Cheek Here? No!

What did Jesus do?

He looked the guy in the eye, you know that look that shoot knives, and said "Hey… If I said something wrong, then tell me so I can make amends, otherwise why are you back-slapping me Bub?"

We do not see Christ turning the other cheek here. In fact, He spoke up and asked why he was being insulted in such a manner when He did not do anything wrong. A slap is an insult; a fist is an attack.

Folks, since we have become a non-fighting war like people, we have gotten soft. More than that we have lost perspective and social context in regard to our Lord and Savior.

He was not a long haired wimpy, spineless man. He was and is the Son of God. and He did not take garbage from people. When He saw wrong, He dealt with it; but He also showed us how to be a true Servant Warrior.

We need to get this feminised, emasculated idea of Christ out of our minds. We need to start realizing Who it is we serve. HE is the Lion of Judah. He is compassionate but strong. He is loving but will not tolerate the bozos of the world who sneak in at dark to attack. He stands up for what is just, right and true.

I challenge you to start reading the gospels again and start looking for the Warrior Lion of Judah Who is our Lord. Forget about this weak, blue eyed hippy portrayal that so many people attribute Him.

Christ was The Warrior King, is The Warrior King and when all is said and done, will be The Warrior King when The Day of The Lord takes place.

This is the Man we need to emulate, not the Man those cowardly, retiring men and feminist pacifists have forced down our throats.

If anything, Christ shows us that we need to stand our ground, and these so-called enemies are nothing. We serve the King of Kings. If they slap us in the face, we ask them if they want the other cheek to slap. If they want our coat, take it off and throw it in their face and ask them if they want your shirt as well.

We need to start standing like true men and women of God. We are a people who have a back bone, we know Who it is we serve. We serve The Warrior King – King Jesus – The Lion of Judah!

Ephesians 6:13 Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.

35 Years After The Murder of Rudolf Hess – It's Time For The Truth About An Earlier Plot

By
Jailing Opinions

Thirty-five years ago today the 93-year-old Rudolf Hess died at Spandau, where he had been the sole prisoner for more than twenty years. He had been incarcerated for almost half a century, since his crash landing in Scotland in May 1941.

Hess flew to Britain hoping that Germany and Britain could end their mutually-destructive war. He proposed that Britain should develop her Empire which was in no way threatened by Germany, who only required the return of her relatively modest colonies from the Kaiser's era.

Under Hess's proposals, Germany would be given a free hand in Europe, including dealing with Stalin's Soviet Union.

Soon after his arrival, Hess was interviewed by Lord Simon (Lord Chancellor in Churchill's cabinet) and Ivone Kirkpatrick, a senior Foreign Office diplomat and expert on Germany. The transcript of their conversation includes Hess pointing out:

"The Führer was of the opinion that the war would be a reason for a closer rapprochement between the countries, one which he had always attempted to bring about. The Führer's aim ever since 1921 had always been to further this rapprochement between the countries and (that was) the aim which he had always had in view ever since he came to power."

Unfortunately British leaders had rebuffed Hitler's repeated peace offers, including his suggestion of an international convention against bombing of civilians.

"I could lay out a whole list of broken treaties and broken international laws. I would like to remind you of Lawrence of Arabia. It is well known that he resigned from his rank of colonel because England did not keep his word to the Arabs. The reproach of the suppression of small nations comes ill from England's mouth.

RUDOLF HESS IN GLASGOW HOSPITAL

THIS WAS HIS 'PLANE

"Insanity" —Rubbish

"I Found German Lying In Field"

Good Morning! Another Day Nearer Victory!

"German people ask themselves constantly: What guarantee is there that England will keep to her treaties, her pacts, in any better way than she has done previously? In addition there is considerable bitterness in Germany because they know, the German people know, that the Führer did not want the war on the civilian population by means of bombing raids. The Führer made the suggestion at the beginning of the war that such bombing attacks should not occur.

"Despite this, ever increasing attacks made by the British Air Force on the German civil population resulted."

Rudolf Hess believed that he was uniquely placed to convey Adolf Hitler's true intentions to influential figures in Britain and provide a foundation for peace talks.

After war had intensified during 1940, Hess perceived that Britain would not now easily agree a peace settlement without losing prestige, so he decided to take the risk of flying to Britain himself, "so that by his own presence in England, England would be enabled to consider an approach." Hess hoped that he could provide some foundation on which peace talks could proceed.

Instead this martyr for peace found himself in one prison or another for the rest of his life.

To begin with Hess used cautious language about the Soviet Union, not wishing to give away too much in advance of what he hoped would be serious negotiations with the British. But by July 1941 when he wrote a memorandum titled "Germany – England from the viewpoint of war against the Soviet Union", eventually handed to government minister and Daily Express owner Lord Beaverbrook, Hess was open (and prescient) about the overriding threat from Moscow that he believed an Anglo-German alliance should combat.

He believed that Germany was strong enough to defeat Russia, correctly pointing out that German morale was far higher in this war than it had been during the First World War:

"It will hardly be doubted that the spirit of the troops is magnificent. The elements which in the [first] world war eventually weakened the spirit of the German troops – the disruptive influences from home infected with Marxist communism, and hunger at home – are missing today.

"Thanks to the effects of National-socialism, the German armed forces are not only immune from Bolshevik propaganda, but fantastically anti-Bolshevik."

Nevertheless, Hess asked influential Britons such as Beaverbrook to consider the consequences for the British Empire of a German defeat.

"Consequent on the Anglo-Bolshevik alliance, a victory for England would be a victory for the Bolsheviks.

"—-Should England's hopes of a German weakening be realised, the Soviet state, after the expansion of its armament capacity, would be the strongest military power in the world.

"Only a strong Germany as counter-balance, supported by all Europe, and in trustful relationship with England, could hinder this.

"I believe that Germany, destined by fate, was compelled at a given moment to draw aside the curtain covering the secret of the Bolshevik army, so that revelation of the danger might even yet make possible the defence of the civilised world.

"…England should further bear in mind the danger that would face certain parts of her Empire when the Bolshevik giant – which today is hardly conquerable by the biggest army in the world – has reached the military strength to be anticipated in the future.

"The danger will be still further increased by the attraction of Bolshevik ideas with the native-born populations with a low standard of living.

"…I am convinced that world domination awaits the Soviet Union in the future – if her power is not broken at the last minute – with the loss to Great Britain of her position as an Imperial power.

Hess showed his extensive knowledge of British political history by pointing out that an Anglo-German understanding in 1941 would bring to fruition the objectives pursued by Joseph "…A genuine understanding with Germany would be, for England, a realisation of the efforts of Joe Chamberlain (above) at the beginning of the century. It could have as a result the taking over by Germany of the role towards Russia which Joe Chamberlain, in his day, expected from Germany.

"It would be advantageous to England's power in the future to divert to her Empire the strength which she has been expending in European affairs.

"Germany has no wish to mix in the affairs of the British Empire. On the contrary, she wishes to have no causes of friction with her.

"But this is only possible in the long run if Germany gets sufficient room in Europe in which to settle and to nourish her surplus population. Otherwise she would be compelled to seek the necessary room in other parts of the world, as well as to carry on her export at any price. Sooner or later this must lead to clashes in the British sphere of interest.

"The desire of Germany to avoid all causes of friction with the British Empire is evidenced by Germany's refusal to strive after world domination, as has often been emphatically declared by the Führer. He explained to me that striving after world domination would only lead to irresponsible disintegration of strength. Germany needs these powers in the East, where her future lies. He would emphasise this in his political testament.

"…In conclusion: England must ask herself whether it pays her, at great sacrifice, to make the most precarious effort to conquer the Axis and, into the bargain, to strengthen with certainty, Bolshevik Russia as an immensely more dangerous opponent to her Empire."

Last month – using recently released documents from the UK National Archives – I explained why we can now deduce that Hess was murdered by Tony Jordan, a black American prison guard at Spandau.

Today on the 35th anniversary of that murder, we should look back to 1941, and an earlier conspiracy to murder Hess within days of his arrival.

More than eighty years have passed since that murder plot, that was apparently foiled by the security service MI5, but the British authorities are still hiding aspects of the story.

Seventeen Polish officers were said by MI5 to have been part of the plot, in addition to two British officers including the expert sniper Alfgar Hesketh-Prichard.

According to senior MI5 officer Guy Liddell who investigated this conspiracy to murder, "the Poles seem to think that Hess may have come here to offer peace negotiations and that the British Government may succumb to the idea leaving the Poles in the hands of Germany."

Above: SOE officer Alfgar Hesketh-Prichard plotted to murder Rudolf Hess within days of his arrival in Britain, but was later killed by his own Soviet allies.

Though today's British government still refuses to release full details of the murder plot, I have tracked down some of Hesketh-Prichard's strange connections and will expose some of the forces behind the conspiracy in my forthcoming book.

The tragic irony was that Polish patriots and Hesketh-Prichard himself soon fell victim to the Bolshevik threat foreseen by Hess.

Having failed in an unofficial plot to kill one leading national-socialist in 1941, Hesketh-Prichard became chief liaison officer for SOE (the Special Operations Executive) training and equipping the Czech assassins who killed Reinhard Heydrich in Prague in 1942.

But in December 1944 when he took charge of another SOE team working with Slovene partisans on the mountainous Austrian-Yugoslav border, Hesketh-Prichard was murdered by his own allies!

The Kremlin gave the order to a communist partisan leader that Hesketh-Prichard should be eliminated, to prevent SOE from building alliances of non-communist guerrilla fighters. His remains were never found. Whether or not this was part of their motive, Moscow's agents silenced the man at the centre of the first plot to murder Rudolf Hess.

The Rothschilds via Reuters Control the Social Credit Score System Worldwide from London

From Our American Correspondent

NOW WAR AROSE IN HEAVEN, MICHAEL AND HIS ANGELS FIGHTING AGAINST THE DRAGON. And the dragon and his angels fought back, but he was defeated, and there was no longer any place for them in heaven. And the great dragon was thrown down, that ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, the deceiver of the whole world—he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

Notice: The writers are continuing to process evidence relied upon in this article.

American regulators controlled by the Senior Executive Service (SES) and the British Pilgrims Society Crown Agents have turned over total control of American banking to Reuters (Rothschilds) in London.

America's stock, currency and commodity exchanges are completely controlled from London by Reuters.

The Rothschilds via Reuters Control the Social Credit Score System Worldwide from London the Rothschilds via Reuters Control the Social Credit Score System Worldwide from London.

Data Processing Truism: When you control the database, you control the data in it. If you don't want a banking transaction to go through, you just mark it with one character, a zero "0" or "NO!"

Your Banker Has Been Tapped to Spy on You

(Sep. 14, 2022)—Inside a tangle of interlocking relationships we have discovered that the coming "social credit score system" is controlled by Thomson Reuters and the Rothschild Banks in London.

After 9-11 and the USA Patriot Act, the British Pilgrims Society began building the "Know Your Customer (CYC)" database within banking. The excuse for unifying this record was for "anti-terrorism" and "anti-money laundering" post 9-11.

This triggered a convolution of well-funded startups, mergers, reverse mergers, flips, jumps and interlocking relationships within stock exchanges and their regulatory co-conspirators. We have this evidence from judicially recognizable sources and are processing it now.

Reuters, Canary Wharf, London

It can be used in court without additional verification required. This helps avoid the election meddler mantra that no one is showing the evidence of massive 2020 voter fraud (which they are).

> "Whoever has ears, let them hear." Matthew 13: 9.

The bottom line of our findings is that America's stock, commodity and currency regulators have ceded control of the KYC master database for controlling and approving transactions to Reuters in London—outside the United States. Reuters has been controlled by the Rothschilds since 1850.

The Rothschilds are key operatives in the British Pilgrims Society started in 1902. Members and officers of the Pilgrims Society include Winston Churchill, Woodrow Wilson, J P Morgan, David Sarnoff (RCA, NBC), Andrew Carnegie, John D. Rockefeller, Henry Kissinger (Rockefeller Foundation, petrodollar), Volcker (Fed Res), Weinberger (Sec Def), Haig (Sec State), Bill and Hillary, Youngkin (VA gov), Tenet (CIA, Qineti Q), Giambastini (US Navy, US Joint Chiefs), Breyer (Accel, Facebook), Soros, Malloch-Brown, Pattie (Marconi, BAE, Golden Share, SERCO), Clegg (Facebook), Knowles (Kamala, Prince's Trust), Lord Michael Farmer (gold, silver rigging, ICE, Candace), Diamond (J P Morgan Chase), etc.

All American securities, commodities and banking transactions are catalogued (and thus controlled) by the Rothschild's Reuters KYC database in London. The London Stock Exchange Group (LSEG) is controlled by the same Reuters KYC database in London.

Buried in the KYC charter is a single word: "enhance." This means that whatever other data the markets wish to track via the Reuters KYC database, they can "enhance" that information.

Herein Is the Mammonic Fiddle

The KYC database can purchase additional data about a customer from other sources like Google, Yahoo!, Facebook, Instagram, Hulu, Uber, eBay, Amazon, Fedex, UPS and Apple. When this data is added to the customer's KYC financial transaction data, a nearly impeccable profile of the person results. In fact, one can predict with high precision their every move, in advance.

We have thought that Facebook or Google would become the repository for the threatened social credit score system. NO! It will be Reuters purchasing that data and combining it with your KYC banking data!

How did the Rothschild's pull off this Reuters control?

We will show you a dizzying array of company names in this interlocked, incestuous Rothschild Gordian knot including Avox Limited, Depository Trust and Clearing Corporation (DTCC), Clarient Global LLC, Deutsche Boerse AG, London Stock Exchange Group (LSEG), Blackstone Group, Reuters Founders Share Company Limited, Thomson Reuters Founders Share Company Limited . The following banks participated in this Rothschild grand fiddle, including Barclays, Credit Suisse, Goldman Sachs, J.P. Morgan, State Street and others.

How To Deal With The System's Ever Evolving Threats By Charlie O'Neill

Build New Communities Rather than Getting Others to 'Wake up'

PERHAPS WE WRONGLY BELIEVED WE WERE ENGAGED IN THE FINAL BATTLE for our rights during the height of the covid coup, but it turns out this was just part of a much wider war.

Everybody reacts differently to disillusionment and betrayal. Faced with the prospect of everything that had previously been held true being suddenly yanked away from them, human reactions can be quite varied if, broadly speaking, predictable.

In the long run, the majority simply adapt to the new reality and tell themselves whatever comforting lies they need to, in order to keep on functioning.

Others simply cannot accept that they have been compelled by their own government to give up their economic, political and bodily autonomy and so, instead, become aggressive defenders of the 'new normal' and the institutions that impose it.

Besides these two groups, a sizeable minority hold fast to the principle of truth, in spite of the many pressures put upon them and the social and economic penalties they incur for doing so.

However, prior to the covid coup, even many within what has become 'the truth movement' did not realise quite how far gone most people who fall into the other two broad groups really were.

I really believed that the majority of people would surely 'wake up' if their own economic interests or fundamental liberties were ever directly threatened, even if they wouldn't take any serious action to protect the rights and interests of others.

Yet we have seen that this is not the case. In fact, most people will not only accept increasing infringements on their rights and economic prosperity by various government agencies, but will actually defend those imposing them, whilst blindly attacking and mocking anyone who tries to rally them in defence of their own most basic interests.

To sum up: an international clique of financiers and technocrats has, for whatever reason, decided that now is the right moment to launch a worldwide coup against the rest of mankind. In the process, this group of powerful conspirators has also understood that the majority of our fellow citizens, including and especially doctors, police, politicians, teachers, councillors, and other so-called professionals, will not only go along with this brutal assault upon our freedoms, our children's futures, our prosperity and our health, but will enthusiastically cheer it on as well.

Effectively, we find ourselves cast adrift within our own nations, unable to depend upon the core institutions that are supposed to protect and serve us.

At the same time, we now know that large numbers of the people around us will turn, in an instant, into loyal government enforcers and snitches if the propaganda machine instructs them to, while the rest will do nothing meaningful to stop or oppose them.

It becomes far easier to understand how millions of seemingly normal people allowed themselves to be thrown into the meat-grinder during various wars for bankers' interests, or were even persuaded to massacre their friends and neighbours over cultural or religious differences in the past - especially given the fact that they had far less access to information than we do nowadays.

But the realisation of our true position should be an advantage to us, however depressing it might appear at first - after all the truth is the truth, no matter how uncomfortable or inconvenient.

After the initial shock has passed - and this can take some time to truly process - we can actually derive a lot of strength from this new-found knowledge of where we really stand in relation to our government and fellow citizens.

Knowing that we are a distinct community whose mindset is completely alien to most of the population around us, we need to start to change the entire way we view and interact with the world, as well as how we plan for the future.

While we should, of course, continue to forge effective political power and counter the lies of the state for our cause, as well as forming alliances of convenience with various other groups that share at least some of our goals and interests, I nonetheless believe that we have seen that the 'mass awakening' approach simply doesn't work, given the state of the population in general and the hypnotic power the mass media is still able to wield over many people.

This realisation potentially allows us to free up significant time and energy which was previously spent attempting to awaken others to the truth, when their minds were already stubbornly 'made up', in line with the mainstream narrative and government propaganda.

This is time and energy which we can now use to start building various economic enterprises, communities and resources for ourselves. By pooling the skills, knowledge and finances we have available on our side, we can - to a certain extent - insulate ourselves against many of the ruler- manufactured crises that are likely to hit the sleeping majority like a bolt out of the blue in the coming months and years.

The resources we could generate by taking such an approach could then be used to slowly convert people when they are actually ready to hear our message - and more and more will be, as the overall situation continues to deteriorate and we are proved right by events.

We can also begin to use some of the capital and networks we are creating to field effective political candidates who can advocate for our interests, divert resources to our community and safeguard our rights on a local level, to the extent that this is still possible in our corrupt and rotten system. Councils and parliament still make all the decisions, even if not their own.

Perhaps we wrongly believed we were engaged in the final battle for our rights during the height of the covid coup.

It turns out this was just part of a much wider war - a war for sanity and freedom and truth; a war in which it appears increasingly likely that many of our fellow citizens will unfortunately choose to side with those who are trying to extinguish all of those things forever. Source

The Venetian Conspiracy (Part 4) By Webster G. Tarpley, Ph.D

THE LOOT BROUGHT BACK FROM THE SACK OF CONSTANTINOPLE was greater than anything Europe would see until the Spanish treasure fleets from the New World several centuries later. Venice had acquired a colonial empire of naval bases, and was hegemonic in the eastern Mediterranean. To top it all off, the sultan of Egypt had paid a substantial bribe to Dandolo to keep the Crusaders out of Palestine in the first place.

For the human race, the Fourth Crusade was an unmitigated tragedy. The hypertrophy of Venetian power in the Mediterranean was one of the decisive factors ensuring the later defeat of Emperor Federigo II of Hohenstaufen, King of Sicily. The Venetian puppet "Latin Empire" was overthrown by the Paleologues in 1261, but by that time Federigo was gone. By 1266-68, Federigo's two sons and their Ghibelline supporters were defeated by Charles of Anjou, and the last representative of the Hohenstaufen dynasty was beheaded in the public square of Naples. The triumph of the Black Guelphs had become irreversible.

The Guelph Coat of Arms

A further contributing factor in this tragedy was doubtless the Mongol hordes. At about the time the Venetians were sacking Constantinople, Ghengis Khan ruled over an empire that extended from Korea all the way to Iran, and which was rapidly advancing to the West.

Batu, a nephew of Ghengis, defeated the Bulgarians in 1236, captured Kiev in the Ukraine in 1240, and swept into Poland. In Silesia in 1241 the German and Polish feudal army, including the Teutonic Knights, was annihilated. Later in the same year the Mongols defeated the Hungarians.

The Mongols did not, for reasons that are not clear, advance further westward, but the Mongol Golden Horde that imposed its hegemony over Russia was the beginning of Russia's economic and cultural backwardness. For some loosening of the Mongol yoke, the Russians would have to fight the titanic battle of Kulokovo Field on the Don in 1380.

In these Mongol victories, there was something more than mere numerical superiority at work. as one historian sums up the case: The Mongols did not sweep in wildly and suddenly, like reckless barbarians. No indeed, they advanced according to careful plan. At every stage, the Mongol generals informed themselves ahead of time about the state of European courts, and learned what feuds and disorders would be advantageous to their conquests.

This valuable knowledge they obtained from Venetian merchants, men like Marco Polo's father. It was thus not without reason that Polo himself was made welcome at the court of Kublai, and became for a time administrator of the Great Khan.

So the great Marco Polo, and the Venetian family from which he came, was responsible for directing the destruction of Ghengis Khan against Europe. The omnipresent Venetian intelligence was also a factor in the Mongol destruction of the Arab cultural center of Baghdad in 1258.

King Philip II of Spain

Friedrich Schiller and William Shakespeare both analyse the manipulative methods employed by the Venetian secret intelligence establishment; both considered Venetian intelligence one of their most formidable enemies. Much of Schiller's writing is dedicated in various ways to fighting the Venice-Genoa-Geneva combination that had held the financial reins of King Philip II of Spain.

Schiller's direct treatment of Venice is a fragment of a novel titled Der Geisterseher ("The Ghost Seer"). Its central character is a Sicilian charlatan, expert at bringing the spirits of the departed back into the world for the thrill-seeking nobility at séances. This Sicilian charlatan is a figure for a whole class of Venetian intelligence operatives, like Count Cagliostro, the mountebank who claimed to be the reincarnation of the leading Mason of ancient Egypt.

Another of this breed was Emanuel Swedenborg. After Schiller's time, this category swelled considerably with theosophists like Madame Blavatsky, Annie Besant, Henry Steel Olcott, and with that archapparitionist Rudolph Steiner, founder of the Anthroposophy movement and the Waldorf schools.

In Schiller's tale, a young German prince in Venice for the grand tour is subjected to a series of manipulations by a sinister, masked Armenian, who informs him, before the fact, of the death of a close relative hundreds of miles away.

At a gambling den, a young Venetian patrician picks a quarrel with the prince, who fears for his life until he is ushered into one of the chambers of the Council of Ten, where the offending patrician is strangled before his eyes. He comes into contact with the Sicilian mountebank, and then spends weeks attempting to ascertain the identity of a mysterious beauty he has seen at church.

He begins to frequent a semi-secret free-thinking club, called the Bucentoro after the golden ship used by the doge on occasions of state. At least one cardinal is also a member of the Bucentoro.

He takes to gambling, loses heavily, and contracts immense debts. In the meantime, rumours are spread at his Protestant court that he has become a Catholic, which leads to his repudiation by his entire family. At the end of the fragment, his life has been ruined, and his death is imminent.

Shakespeare's "Othello, The Moor of Venice" is a more finished analysis of the same technique. It was written and performed shortly after 1603, when the Venetians and Genoese had acquired vast powers in England through the accession of their puppet James I to the throne.

Othello is a Moor, hired out to Venice as a mercenary, and at the apex of his power, having just won a victory over the Turkish fleet attacking Cyprus. He enjoys the full confidence of the Senate, and has just married Desdemona, the daughter of a patrician. Othello, the "erring barbarian," is however something of a dumb giant: his proficiency in the arts of war is unmatched, but his emotional makeup tends decidedly toward the naive and infantile. He has no real insight into affairs of state, or into psychology. Above all, he is superstitious and has a propensity for jealousy.

Othello

All of these weaknesses are systematically exploited by "honest Iago," a member of Othello's staff who is determined to destroy him. Iago is the figure of the Venetian intelligence officer, an expert in what he calls "double knavery" – the art of manipulation. He sets out to destroy Othello using an accurate psychological profile of the Moor, and exploiting above all Othello's naive willingness to trust his "honest Iago." Iago's modus operandi is to:

Make the Moor thank me, love me, and reward me,
For making him egregiously an ass
And practicing upon his peace and quit
Even to madness.
